For example, when certain Jordan models have yellowing on them, the yellowing must be consistent throughout both shoes in order to pass our verification process. If one shoe had more yellowing than the other shoe, it will not pass our verification process. I hope this helped clarify your concerns. If you have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to reach back out to us. We'd be happy to assist you further. As always, thank you for being part of the StockX family and for your continuous support. I hope you and your loved ones continue to stay healthy and safe. If you are confident that the shoes are authentic and this is a manufacture defect, I will accept the $15 refund. I do have a question though because I have had shoes I sold returned with manufacturer defects cited by StockX. How do you determine what the acceptable level is

		for manufacturer defects? For example, I had a pair of yeezy 350 v2 Cinder returned to me because the sole was slightly translucent, but that was out of my control and passed adidas QC inspection. v/r  [REDACTED] On Tue, Jul 26, 2022 at 3:58 PM  support@stockx.com &amp;lt;support@stockx.com&amp;gt;  wrote: Hello Alex, Thank you for contacting StockX's support team! My name is Anie and I am part of StockX's specialty team. Thank you for bringing it to our attention that you are unsatisfied with the condition of your Nike Air Max 1 SHTreeline. I understand how upset you are because you were expecting to receive your item in perfect condition. No worries though! I'm here to help you with your order. Some pairs will pass StockX's verification despite being unlaced, tried on for fit, and/or having slight manufacturer flaws and imperfections that are uncontrollable.
